Your Hose Could be Hazardous to Your Health

Arlington Water Utilities works hard to provide safe, high quality drinking water to your home, but we need your help to protect the water after it gets there!

The danger comes when a hose—any hose—is connected to a harmful substance. If water pressure drops, contaminated water can be sucked back into your pipes and into your drinking water.

Help protect your water by taking these easy steps:

- ◆ Install an inexpensive hose bibb vacuum breaker for all of your outside faucets.
- ◆ Never submerge hoses in buckets, pools, tubs, or sinks.
- ◆ Do not use spray attachments for applying lawn chemicals or soap without a backflow preventer.

Use one of these, to protect you here, from things like this.
