

Make Life Better For Animals In Our Community

We can start making life better for dogs and cats in our community by having a good fence. If you have a dog, have your fence deep and tall. If a Great Dane is big enough, it can jump a fence. A Jack Russell Terrier might dig his way out.

If you make an environment that your pet likes, it will not want to run away. Make a soft bed for it and give it food and water. Be kind to your pets. Don't hit them, but do discipline them. Play with them and talk to them.

Do not judge animals by their reputation. Some are just owned by bad owners. All animals need love. Learn about your animal before you get one. Some dogs are for first timers and other are for people who have had dogs before.

A Labrador is a good dog for a first timer. A Rottweiler is good for somebody who has had a dog before.

Stay away from animals with babies if they are not yours. If you don't, you will have a good fight on your hands.

Don't let your animals wander around the community. Keep them on your property. Sometimes pets get into people's garbage and tear it up looking for food. Some pets leave their waste in yards. Then animal control is called and your dog will be picked up. If you do these things, life will be better for animals in our community.
