One way that animals can be used daily in our lives is service animals. Guide dogs are used by the blind to help get around town as well as help in the home. The benefit of horses include, mounted police services and labor animals for farmers and ranchers. Horses are also used for riding and riding lessons. Special dogs are trained to sniff out drugs and bombs in large cities and airports.

Another benefit of animals is food. Cows provide us with meat and milk. Chickens lay eggs and give us their meat. A pig gives us meat called pork. These animals provide food for other animals too. An example of that is dog and cat food.

Our pets help us live long happy lives. We get exercise when we play and take care of our pets. Our pets give us a sense of responsibility. It makes me feel good when I get to see my pet grow.

Animals can help us with our career choices too. Some of the jobs that you can have are a veterinarian, dog rescuer, wolf expert and a zoo keeper. You can even work to preserve the animals in the rainforest or become a marine biologist.

The best benefit of all is the unconditional love you get from animals. When I come home from school, my dog Hannah is always there to greet me. I love to play with her after I am done with my homework. She makes me feel so loved and important. That is the best benefit for me!
